Dr. James Tabor:

"Although our views of Christianity are quite different, I think he has indeed produced an amazing work.. Though some of the author's critics have treated him with an air of arrogant dismissal, they have not even begun to address his arguments. I think because of the author's utter seriousness about the subject, which to him carries such grave implications, he has left no stone unturned, no argument unaddressed. I think those who take the time to read this dense work will come away realizing it is a towering work that will stand for a long time to come."
